Also Benefiting:

When we had our daughter Morgan, in 1999, we were perplexed by a strange mark on her face that was soon diagnosed as a type of vascular birthmark called a hemangioma. We did our research and soon discovered the Vascular Birthmarks Foundation. Like thousands of families dealing with vascular birthmarks, the VBF was able to aid us in providing support, information and treatment options for our daughter. It was through this connection that we decided to form the Frank Catalanotto Foundation. Our goal has been to raise money and awareness to help support the VBF. We are proud to be honorary chairpersons for the foundation, to help in their efforts to promote the VBF and get the word out about what we are and how we can help.

Today, VBF is the leading not for profit in the world for children and adults affected by such vascular birthmarks as hemangiomas, port wine stains, and malformations. In 2010 we reached the 50,000 mark for the number of individuals we have networked into medical treatment. We also have chapters now throughout the world, including Latin America, Canada, New Zealand, Europe, Australia, India, Asia, Russia, Poland. We have new board members who bring a wealth of expertise to the board and our Scientific Advisory Committee tells us that their research is making history in the world of vascular birthmarks.
